BRIGHTON BOY IS BADLY INJURED BY AUTO TRUCK

Little Jimmy Paterson, aged four, in hospital, his hip fractured and with internal injuries from which it is feared he will die, as result of auto truck accident.

GLOVER WIDOW SAYS ELMORE URGED FLIGHT

Mrs. Truman Paterson of No. 54 Montague avenue, Brighton, was overcome when her daughter ran into the house and cried:

"Mama, Jimmy's been run over by an automobile."

The boy, four-year-old, was playing in front of No. 33 Southern avenue when an Adams Express Company motor truck, operated by Jerome J. Sullivan of Tyler street, South End, stepped in front of the house.

For some reason, the machine backed, and the boy was caught. Sullivan heard his cries and jumped down. He found the boy beside the wheel, and hurried with him to the office of Dr. W. L. Ripley on Oak square avenue.

Dr. Ripley sent the boy in an ambulance to St. Elizabeth's Hospital. The boy has a fractured thigh and possible internal injuries.

The petition of Lillian M. Glover for a receiver for the Waltham Laundry Company, of which her murdered husband, Clarence F. Glover, was manager, was before Judge Pierce in the Supreme Judicial Court today.

Affidavits of Mrs. Glover and Samuel D. Elmore, executor under the will, were read to the court, in which Mrs. Glover alleged that Elmore refused to allow her to see the books of the company and refused to return 100 shares of stock of the laundry which are her property and not part of the estate of her husband.

According to the affidavit of the widow of the laundry man, Mrs. Elmore advised Mrs. Glover to leave the country and go to Paris to avoid prosecution after the murder of her husband. Mrs. Glover claimed the advice was for the purpose of making it more difficult for her to get her property.

Large sums of money were paid for unnecessary litigation, according to Mrs. Glover, when Elmore received $11,353.84 for services as executor.

Mrs. Elmore denies the allegations of Mrs. Glover in an affidavit, and says he did not advise her to leave the country, and has always acted in good faith.

Move to Make City Schools Fireproof

FINDS FOR SCHOOL SAFETY

The Schoolhouse Commission today considered plans for the expenditure of $100,000 in making safe against fire school buildings of the city. The sum of $100,000 has been made available through the discovery of a provision in a 1908 statute which, by a liberal interpretation, allows the transfer of funds under certain circumstances.

The $100,000 comes out of the $150,000 set aside for the construction of a school administration building on the site of the old Probate Building. Mayor Curley has approved the request of the Schoolhouse Commission for the transfer of the sum.

The "safety" school fire, which cost the lives of ten-one children, was followed by an immediate demand from Mayor Curley for an accounting from the Schoolhouse Commission. Chairman Joseph F. Lomeny said there was not a cent available to make the school buildings more safe against loss of life in fire.

He stated the work done in the past, for which about $25,000 a year had regularly been set aside. The Mayor was disturbed at the prospect of delay in writing the necessary funds; but the discovery of the 1908 statute opened a way out, which was at once seized.

The true members of the Schoolhouse Commission have been engaged for some time in a study of conditions. Some investigators have examined the old buildings which have been built up on the ones that have most cause for concern.

Underlying law money has been set aside for this work, purely as a moral obligation to the children, and without specific authorization.

Chairman Lomeny said today he believes a series of examinations of Boston school buildings will show the schools are on the whole as safe as in any city of the size of Boston in the country.

Somerville Boy Attacked by a 'Wild Angora'

What the police describe as a "wild Angora cat," attacked seven-year-old Thelma Whitney in the back yard of his home at No. 17 New Hampshire avenue, East Somerville, today, and bit and scratched the boy's legs before Mrs. Ardella Palmer, the mother, could come to his rescue.

Mrs. Whitney heard her daughter's cries, ran into the yard, and when the cat made a move to attack her, caught up a stick and drove it to the shelter of a second-story porch.

"Patrolman Davis was summoned, put on his gloves and captured the cat without difficulty. It was taken to Somerville police headquarters. The owner has not been found."

Mayor of Medford Drops 30 Employees

Mayor Holmes of Medford today wrote letters to thirty employees of the Highway Department informing them that they would be laid off tomorrow for an indefinite period. He explained the Aldermen had ignored his recommendations for appropriations for the Highway Department, and that until the Board acts, there will be no money available to employ labor.

To Mayor also asked police officers to report to him the names and addresses of boys who are heard to cry profanely.

Mayor Sees Peace in Freight Strike

Settlement of the month-old freight handlers' strike that has affected 3500 men at the local freight houses of the Boston & Maine, the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the Boston & Albany railroads, was predicted to come this week, in a statement made by Mayor Curley today. He believes the settlement will result in the men returning to work as a body.

Two Sentenced in Crusade on Drugs

The Watch and Ward Society secured two more convictions in its war on the drug traffic in Boston. Samuel McClintock was sentenced to six months in jail today by Judge William J. Sullivan for selling opium. He was charged with delivering morphine for sale. John French was sentenced to a year in jail and a fine of $100 for selling opium. He also received an old ten-month suspended sentence.

SCHEME TO BARE OF 2 WP ROVE IN COURT

Three large slices are to be taken off Boston Common if the plans submitted by Mayor Curley today by the Street Commissioner are approved.

The cuts will be along the full length of Park, Tremont and Boylston streets.

These plans are made for street widening purposes. The strip proposed to be taken along Park street is 15 feet wide. The strip proposed to be taken along Tremont street is 15 feet wide. The strip along Boylston street varies from 15 to 15 feet in width.

A public hearing has been set for the morning of November 21, and if much opposition develops, the matter will be submitted to the voters at a referendum, as the state law provides.

The Street Commissioner, in his letter to the Mayor, says:

"The traffic problem in the heart of the city is rapidly becoming a serious matter. Aside from providing a remedy for the congestion in and about Washington street, the big question calling for immediate solution, or at least relief, is the widening of Tremont street, between Park street and Boylston street, and some provision to make it easier."

Wife Tells Story

The husband is William J. Glase. When his wife took the stand, he was in the second row of seats not far from the baby.

Mrs. Glase told of her life with her husband, and how he left her and their child. She said:

"When we informed my husband's mother before our marriage of our intention to marry, his mother said to me: 'I will not stand for my son's marrying you, for the fact that you are of a different faith.'"

"I was given to understand, and in fact told, that I must change my faith."

"I once heard my husband's mother say that if he went out with me, she would disinherit him. That was before we were married. That was before I was given to understand that I must change my faith."

"Two days after the birth of our baby, the child was stricken blind and remained so for six months. The baby was in that condition when my husband left me."

"HOPE FOR SERBS IS GONE"

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Dispatches today from three sources make it appear that Serbia's hope of rescue by the allies is gone; that it is now too late for the French and British expeditionary forces to save the Serbian army from destruction. Some reports say that what is left of the Serbian army is in what is left.

A despatch from Bucharest, capital of Rumania, says that so early as the allies may now make can save the Serbians, unless Rumania sends 200,000 men. The Anglo-French allies have a similar number, and Rumania and Greece are swung into the fight on the side of the allies.

FIND DIARY OF $1,000 GIFT TO THE RUPPERT HOLY CROSS BY TRAGEDY GOV. WALSH

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—That jealousy and the reproaches of a beautiful young wife were the cause of the double tragedy, in which Henry O. Ruppert, a wealthy retired real estate man of Richmond, Va., shot and killed both his wife and himself, in this city, is made evident in the diary of Ruppert, found after the tragedy.

The notes are scrawled on the left-hand of a Treason hotel. They refer to Mrs. Ruppert, whose Christian name was Rosalie. A mysterious "Miss R." is mentioned in the first entry and the police are trying to locate her.

Here is Ruppert's own record of the events, which led to the shooting:

Sunday, November 7.—Go to church, Broad and State streets, to man's meeting.

Monday, November 8.—Get letter from Miss R. with one in it from R. and Jessie. Get letter from Rosalie in which she says she will meet me in Baltimore. I called her up and she promised to be at the depot at 3.30.

I leave Trenton at 11.35 for Baltimore. Arrive there 5.15. Camden street depot to meet H. We go to Bennett Hotel and have lunch. Everything is O. K. Go to Maryland Theatre that night. To bed. Lie and talk all night.

We get there at 10.15, and go to a hotel before we find one to go to. We finally stop at the McAlpin, room 331. It becomes disatisfied and gets after the trip I had to Philadelphia. We don't sleep all night.

Wednesday, November 10.—About 7 a. m.—I very mad. Begin to die. Ruppert into me and fight me. One thing brings on another and I tell her of my trip to Richmond during Fair Week. She continues to fight. I am convinced all up and brushed she takes bath at 11 p. m., and then goes to sleep. I sit around room waiting for trunk to come. R. gets up and beats me up some more. She writes to her mother about Ruppert and his wife had been divorced. Mrs. Ruppert was formerly Miss Rosalie H. Bacon. Ruppert first wife was Mrs. Fleming Pierce. They were prominent in the younger social set of Richmond.

A month ago, Richmond dispatch states, Ruppert sold his real estate business there. He and his wife were going to California for Ruppert's health.

FALL RIVER, Nov. 12.—At the annual banquet of the Bristol County Alumni Association of Holy Cross College held last night at the Hotel Metten, the Rev. Joseph N. Dignan, J., president of Holy Cross College, announced that he had just received a check for $1,000 from Governor David I. Walsh, a graduate in the class of 1883.

The check, the president added, had been given to the college as a birthday remembrance on the part of its distinguished donor, who yesterday turned his forty-third year.

The announcement of the gift was received with cheers. In making it, President Dignan highly lauded the Governor as a student, a citizen and a public official. He added that the Governor had stipulated no specific manner in which the money should be used.

The banquet was followed by the annual election of officers which resulted as follows: President, Dr. William E. Ryan; vice president, the Rev. Patrick McKee; treasurer, Judge Henry P. Nickerson; secretary, John J. O'Brien.

The executive committee elected consisted of the Rev. Charles A. Donnan, Judge Edward R. Manley and Dr. John Gibbons.

FRENCH SILENCE BATTERIES OF THE ENEMY

Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—Successful operations by French guns and aircraft are announced in today's official communiqué. The text follows:

"The artillery duel was still violent last night in the sector of Lons and in that of the Calvados trench. In the region of Buz, in Artois, our artillery shelled batteries or the enemy which were firing upon our forces."

"On the east of the front the conflict with mines continues successfully for us."

"In the Argonne, at Hill No. 225, we put an end to the works on which the Germans were industriously laboring. To the north of Flirey, we administered another check by preventing the enemy from pushing forward his mine galleries."

Stomach Troubles Due To Acidity

So Says New York Physician.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, stomach-ache and inability to retain food, are to probably due to the simple evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excessive secretion of acid and the fermentation of food. Such fermentation is natural, and may involve harmful consequences if not corrected. The gas or pressure fermentation of food contents of the stomach and to irritate the acid under it and irritates a tremendous amount of bacterial growth, irritates the food and most effective corrector of acidity is Ureol. Ureol is taken in a immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. It stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind, and acidity are corrected, thus preventing them by the use of a proven remedy. Ureol is a powerful stomachic which can be obtained from any druggist and thus enables the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by gas and excessive acid.

U. S. TO DEMAND SAFETY FOR SHIPPING

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—"Glands off the Winnebago."

Secretary Lansing is preparing this demand for safe conduct of the American ship detained at Buenos Ayres through fear of British seizure.

R. G. Wagner, president of the American Transatlantic Company, has received telegraphic instructions from the Secretary of State for evidence that there is no German ownership or interest in the Winnebago. It is on allegations of such interest that the Winnebago has been put on the British blacklist.

The evidence, Mr. Lansing declared, is wanted on a basis for representations to the British government. On its receipt the United States will at once demand that Great Britain permit the Winnebago to proceed.

In courtesy to Mr. Lansing, Mr. Wagner declined to make public his dispatch.

Immediately following receipt of the Lansing telegram, Mr. Wagner wired back that the required proof would be forthcoming at once. Mr. Wagner said:

"It is on the strength of positive evidence that the American Transatlantic is an American corporation with American citizens as sole stockholders and no German ownership or other alien interest, that the Winnebago and all other American-owned ships received American registry."

"In informing the Secretary of State to this effect, I also telegraphed him that proof of these facts will be furnished to him in convincing affidavit form."

Mr. Wagner's proofs will be forwarded to Washington today. He expressed an earnest hope that Secretary Lansing's action marked the beginning of a firm stand in favor of American shipping.

PREPARE EVIDENCE AS BASIS TO DEMAND THAT BRITAIN FREE HOCKING

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Official offer of the aid of the State Department in securing the release of the steamer Hocking has been made to the American Transatlantic Steamship Company, owners of the vessel.

It was announced that if the company would prove to the satisfaction of Secretary Lansing that the Hocking was exclusively American owned, the government will make a diplomatic issue of the seizure of Great Britain. The Hocking is now in the prize court at Halifax.

Officials explained this to mean that if it is established that not one dollar of German money invested in the Hocking, the State Department will ignore the prize court proceedings. A demand on Great Britain for her release will follow.

The case of the Hocking and the Winnebago, owned by the same company, are regarded in the same category. It is believed, therefore, that this government will take the same position as to the latter vessel if also it is alleged to be alien.

Secretary Lansing has telegraphed R. G. Wagner, president of the American Transatlantic Company, advising him, the famous oiler author, has for proof that the company is wholly owned by American interests.

Paint Score of Game on Arlington School

School authorities at Arlington High are indignant against the practical joker who painted the 7 to 0 score of Lexington High's successful gridiron encounter with Arlington on the steps of the Arlington High school. The act was done while Arlington slept, and the next morning a brown coat and the grinning poster of a "Lancaster 7, Arlington 0" stared at the grinning poster.

FLAW IN CHARGE CLEARS BOY OF ARSON

Alexander Bursell, seventeen, of Vaughan street, Dorchester, who was on trial before Judge Hitchcock in the Suffolk Superior Court on a charge of arson, as a result of a three-alarm fire on Olney street, Dorchester, in his order of Judge Hitchcock.

The judge ordered he be found not guilty as a result of a flaw in the indictment. Assistant District Attorney McLean, who was prosecuting the case, said the boy would be re-arrested, and that the Grand Jury would be asked to grant a new indictment.

The flaw as a result of which Bursell was found not guilty lay in the use of the word "adjoining." The indictment charged he set fire to a house belonging to Robert Hamilton and "adjoining" the dwelling house of Thomas Moran.

Thirty feet separates the two buildings, therefore they are not legally "adjoining," and accordingly Bursell was acquitted.

Former Representative Peter J. Donaghy is attorney for the boy.

It was learned at the War Department today that the ordering home of Lieutenant-Colonel James F. Melton means that the real work of fortifying Corregidor Island has been completed. Melton's subordinates will wind up the few details that remain to be attended to.

The last big work which Colonel Melton supervised was the placing in position of the 14-inch guns that will have a range equal to that of the largest guns on the world's biggest battleships. All the other guns had been placed in position before, as when the 14-inch column were tested the "last touches" were made.

Next to the 14-inch guns rank a large number of 12-inch mortars, placed advantageously around the island.

Stage Folks See 'A Place in the Sun'

Over three hundred theatrical folk gathered at the Toy Theatre to witness the performance of Cyril Maude and his company in his newest comedy, "A Place in the Sun." The play was receiving with enthusiasm by an audience.

Following the fall of the curtain, on the evening act, there were calls for the dramatist to come forward and make a speech, but Mr. Maude, who was sitting in the front row at the back of the auditorium and large number of seats were reserved for the various theatrical companies now playing in Boston.

An Extraordinary Tale of Love, Perfidy and Revenge.—By Marie Correlli.

In Five Daily Instalments.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALMENTS.

COUNT FABIO ROMANI, a wealthy Neapolitan nobleman, who tells the story, comes to the city of Naples, on a visit, on his last trip, until he loves at first sight and sends Nina, a constant-bred maiden, a girl to be born to him.

In 1881, a cholera plague sweeps Naples. Count Fabio contracts the disease from a poor boy he tries to aid. He is taken by a monk into a restaurant, where he becomes unconscious, only to realize, when he awakes, that he has been buried alive.

He breaks out of the coffin coffin and escapes from the Roman family vault by a secret passage made by Count Fabio, a brigand. He finds Nina's treasure house in an old crypt.

With his hair whitened by the shock, he starts home only to come upon his one-day widow and his friend, Ferrar, strutting in the Roman city. Biting upon them from a foliage screen, he murmurs: "Would to God I had never broken from my coffin!"

A Changed Man.

WHAT was death—that was the horror of the vault—to the anguish that racked me now?

I know not how I restrained the murderous frenzy that shook within me—how I forced myself to remain motionless and silent within my hiding place. I looked dumbly on at my own betrayal. I saw my honor stabbed to the death by those whom I most trusted, and yet I gave no sign.

They—Guido Ferrar and my wife—came so close to my hiding place that I could note every gesture and hear every word that they uttered. They passed within three feet of me—his arm encircled her waist—she was thrown carelessly around his neck—her head rested on his shoulder. Even so he had walked with me a thousand times.

No trace of grief marred the fairness of her face. Her lips were parted in the childlike smile that was so sweet, so innocently trustful. She spoke:

"You foolish Guido! What would have happened, I wonder, if Fabio had not died so opportunely?"

Laughing lightly Guido said: "I never would have discovered anything. You were too clever for him."

"I am glad he is dead," my wife answered, "but Guido, you are imprudent. You cannot visit me so often. The servants will talk."

Guido's hand played with the pendant she wore—he bent and kissed the place where its central pendant rested—good air, I pray you, for the white flesh with which it is in public property. So I madly thought as I crouched among the trees.

My wife went on nervously: "Nina, Fabio was buried only yesterday—besides, he was the father of my child—you must think of this."

"By Heaven!" exclaimed Guido. "A curse, 'do I not think of it?'—and come him for every line he stole from your lips!"

I listened, half-dumb. Her hands were clenched, then they "utter" kisses. Only lovers were honest in their embrace.

"I married Fabio," I heard my wife say, "because I was poor and was tired of the convent. I suppose I loved him for a week or two. He gave me money and position. Now I am free. I can do as I like. Guido matched her close to my breast, his face aflame with passion. He exclaimed: "Look at this, my wife, shall not fool me. By Heaven, I knew you were a woman, not an angel, and I waited my time. I told my story of love three months or so of wedded life had passed over my head. You were angry to hear me. You led me on. I swear you shall never escape me!"

Sweet to Say Sin In Act of Sinning.

She kissed him back to smiling calm and they passed on. I sprang from my hiding place. What should he do? I remembered what the old register told me. "True, it would be sweet to say sin in the act of sinning. But a Roman must not brand himself as a murderer in the sight of men. I had wealth upon me, the brigand's treasure, to take me place of my own Roman property, now inherited by my wife. I was changed so that none would recognize me. I formed a plan of vengeance so bold, so new, that it started me.

I returned to the city and found a light's lodger. Early the next morning I went to the Roman vault, entered by the secret passage and took all the rolls of paper money and some of the jewels from the treasure chest. I called upon my wife, as though it had never been touched. My own coffin I left as it was, roughly broken open, for it would better serve than the purpose I had. Returning to the harbor front, I took passage on a coasting ship for Palermo.

We arrived at Palermo the next day. There I ordered clothes of the best material, giving the name of Count Cesare Oliv. Securing also from the cloakroom tailor a temporary ready-made outfit, I went to the best hotel and registered under my assumed name. With a leading hair, I placed my new-found wealth, a capful of money, in a small box, as though it had never been touched. My own coffin I left as it was, roughly broken open, for it would better serve than the purpose I had. Returning to the harbor front, I took passage on a coasting ship for Palermo.

gratified him and wished success to his suit.

Guido protested at first but finally confessed: "I do love the Contessa. The very thought of her hand thrills me. I really fancied you were beginning to feel an attraction for her yourself. You will think me jealous mad man, but I was actually making up my mind to do so."

I laughingly disclaimed any rivalry and added that I never should make love to the Contessa, unless she made love to me first, which would be impossible, of course. We rejoined Nina is high good humor. I left early, Guido remaining after I went away. I returned to the house by the back way and, from a place of hiding near the veranda overheard Guido reproaching Nina for her recent cordiality toward me. "You have no idea how concealed he is," he heard Guido say. "He says he will never make love to a woman unless she makes first love to him."

Nina laughed merrily, and said: "Why, he is very original, charmingly so."

I returned to my hotel. The game was in my hands.

CHAPTER IX.
I Set The Trap.

IME WROTE THE AFFAIR. I cultivated Guido's friendship and encouraged him to every drinking. I habit Nina detained.

I never could suppress him into a confession to me of his guilty love for Nina, but he kept me well informed of what he was pleased to call the "progress of his attachment."

Of course I retained my position as an intimate friend of the Roman household. I was particularly prudent in my behavior toward Nina before she knew of my plan. I was very interested in her, I could see. The fame of my wealth and position had spread through Neapolitan society. The reports of my colossal wealth and the society only added piquancy to my fair reputation.

Now Nina was sending me fruit and flowers at my hotel, with constant mention of my health. I sent her secret messages by Vincenzo, my valet. Guido never failed to bring me the middle of November Guido was summoned to Rome by the title of a wealthy uncle who was ill. He would have to be away several weeks. I left her at leaving his home. I was told to me. I promised him I would wait over her for her husband. I was told to me. I promised him I would wait over her for her husband. I was told to me. SAYS WE BECOME CRANKS ON HOT WATER DRINKING

Hopes every man and woman adopts this splendid morning habit.

Why is a man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, dependent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness?

If we all would practice the drinking of phosphated hot water before breakfast, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-faint, nervous-looking people with pale, puffy, moistened complexion we should see crowds of happy, bright, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not get on its feet until it has received a certain amount of food and drink. The system is not in a position to receive the food and drink until it has received a certain amount of food and drink. The system is not in a position to receive the food and drink until it has received a certain amount of food and drink.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so the system must be cleaned each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot. The system is not in a position to receive the food and drink until it has received a certain amount of food and drink. The system is not in a position to receive the food and drink until it has received a certain amount of food and drink.

Millions of people who had their lives at stake, at the time of the great fire, were saved by the use of this hot water. The system is not in a position to receive the food and drink until it has received a certain amount of food and drink. BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

TEAM OF SCROBS WILL OPPOSE BROWN

HOW HARVARD WILL LINE-UP AGAINST BROWN'S TONIGHT.

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

Only the lightest kind of work was done by the Harvard squad yesterday. The team simply warmed up, running through the regular line-up in the gymnasium. The Harvard coach is doing nothing unusual, in fact, it seems good enough to take his men for a closer view of their principal antagonists. The Harvard players will get a much better idea of the Brown team, and the Brown players will get a much better idea of the Harvard team, if they meet in the gymnasium tomorrow night.

Of course, with a team composed of second string men, with perhaps no regulars in the line-up, there is no thought that the Crimson football players do not fear the Brown line, in matter strong he may have grown since the game at Yale last Saturday.

ANOTHER GUNNER.

Bringing Up Father

GILMAN FAVORED TO BE MAHAN'S SUCCESSOR

There is only one logical candidate for variety football captain at Harvard for 1916. Joseph A. Gilman, Jr., the big Hawaiian tackle, should be the man selected for the honor when the Crimson players meet early in December to elect their new leader. Gilman, while he entered Harvard with the class of 1914, dropped by the accident last year, and while there was a chance that he might finish his course in Cambridge next June, the big fellow has decided to return next fall.

Of the so-called first eleven, Gilman is the only man that has played two years on the team who does not have to leave. While there is a junior, this is his first year in football. The same holds true for Hal Duggan, Taylor and Hols are only sophomores, while Captain Mahan, King, Watson, Taylor, Hols and Hal Wallace graduated in June.

Gilman fell down on his scholastic journey at Cambridge shortly after the 1915 football season opened. He left Harvard to enter the navy, a prominent official in Washington. He returned to college this fall, having satisfied all requirements for the sophomore class. He is a graduate of the college authorities.

Somerville High Shot to Pieces

If many more Somerville High School football players take to the hospital last year would be any team to face Malden Saturday. Here's the present lineup: Hefferman, cracked collarbone; Bradley, cracked rib; Ford, wrenched back; shoulder; St. Angelo, lame shoulder; Scanlan, weak ankle. And to make matters worse, Coach Morey has released Baxter and McConnel.

Twenty-one!

By NELL BRINKLEY

Twenty-one! The girl's face now with the carefully arranged curls and the questioning eyes, she thought just a little way back into the Summers that were, with wisdom growing in the line of cheek and brow, denying love-dreams and her hair done up!

And Twenty-one, even through her laughter and the joy of being twenty-one, waits for all those lost children back again—the little girl that were and are no more. Do you ever wish for that little child you were?

NELL BRINKLEY.

What Happened to Jane

Ned's Appealing Letter Is Kept by the Girl's Father

CHAPTER XXIII.

ERIK HADY considered it was to have a little talk with Augustus Reeves before the author returned to his home that night.

Now that freedom from debt and from fear for the future seemed assured, Jane's father did not propose, through misadventure or accident, to leave the adventure alone. He wanted to be sure that Edward Anderson was definitely disposed of.

Augustus accepted promptly Mrs. Hardy's invitation to stay to supper, although he warned her that he must leave soon afterward, as there was a committee meeting at the parsonage.

Jane said little during the meal, even when her betrothed commended the fried ham, creamed potatoes and baked biscuits that had prepared.

Mrs. Hardy glanced apprehensively at the girl from time to time, but except that she was pale, all seemed well with her. Jane had always been level-headed, the mother mused. She had seen that, after all, it would be best for her to marry such a good man as Mr. Reeves.

And how well she could provide for her! Even when her parents were dead and gone Jane would be cared for.

Supper over, Augustus, looking at the girl from time to time, but except that she was pale, all seemed well with her. Jane had always been level-headed, the mother mused. She had seen that, after all, it would be best for her to marry such a good man as Mr. Reeves.

And how well she could provide for her! Even when her parents were dead and gone Jane would be cared for.

Supper over, Augustus, looking at the girl from time to time, but except that she was pale, all seemed well with her. Jane had always been level-headed, the mother mused. She had seen that, after all, it would be best for her to marry such a good man as Mr. Reeves.

And how well she could provide for her! Even when her parents were dead and gone Jane would be cared for.

Some years ago a Colonel, taking interest in young soldiers in India, issued the following ten instructions. "Don't drink to excess; don't drink in the heat of the day; don't drink spirits; don't drink." CONSIDER THIS CAREFULLY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX—

I am twenty-five and living alone with my father and mother and keeping house. I am very lonely. My father thinks I am too old to be alone and I am not sure I am not too old to be alone.

new letter so, because she is too old.

I am a great deal for her and by her actions I believe her feelings toward me are mutual.

My suggestions you are able to give to me on this matter would be most gratefully received. I am not sure I am not too old to be alone.

TELL YOUR HUSBAND

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX— I am married and never very much in love with my husband, whom all my friends and relatives urged me to marry. Last summer I met a young man whom I do love dearly and he returns my love.

Both being conscientious, we are very much worried as to what course to pursue.

Put a married woman to permit her to fall in love with another man cannot lead to happiness. If you feel that this man is absolutely essential to your happiness, can you do without the one whom I do love with my husband? There is no peace of mind or joy possible in the world without love. The woman who ought to be a secret friend. Since both of us are conscientious, I believe you have the right of choice. Be sure you choose wisely.
